

ANTHROPOLOGY (ANT)

ANT 2410 Cultural AnthropologyCredit Hours: 3

This course provides an introduction to the concepts, theories, and methods anthropologists use to study human cultures and diversity throughout the world. Major topics include communication, economics, family, kinship, gender, political organization, religion, race, ethnicity, class, and the role of applied anthropology in addressing contemporary world problems. This is designated as a diversity-dedicated course.